MCAP | STUDENTS | CASE STUDY | SEMESTER 7

IIM Bangalore campus visit - It is unlikely to speak of B. V Doshi, one of his finest inventions, without citing the Bangalore Indian Institute of Management. IIM encouraged him to flourish his own ideology and to develop an Indian based contemporary architecture. In designing a visually appealing building that nonetheless meets all the design goals brilliantly, Doshi skillfully combines his own goals with those of the client.

The IIM campus design manifests us as highly original, imaginative architects, fond of architecture as he is of life and Indian values. Bangalore is named the City of the Garden. The management required B.V Doshi to build a campus that replicated the town outside. Exactly that, and much more, did Doshi. Even inside the classrooms, one can literally see and experience nature. The designer wanted the IIM campus to be an educational hub that encourages safe, open discussions between students and faculty.

Anantha Padmanabhan V. S. and Reeshba Reji have had their final year thesis works recognized at the Mango Architecture Thesis Award (ATA) 2022, an International competition acknowledging the projects among young and influential industry professionals, where they were listed in the top Honourable and Special Mentions respectively. The competition had a participation of 900+ student architects from around the globe, the International Thesis Award aims to promote and give a global platform to showcase the talents of Young Graduates and Postgraduates.

The final year Thesis of Anantha Padmanabhan titled “Telangana State Urban Centre of Excellence (TSUCE)”, is an integrated development of mixed-use typology with the character between architecture-built form and natural geographic feature. A plan to conceive a research centre that would host prototype solutions for various urban issues, which celebrates and leverages the site's natural topography, which is a blend of the 350-million year-old Deccan plateau boulders and plain cultivated fields.

Reeshba took an experimental approach through her thesis titled, “Centre for Peace and Communal Harmony, Delhi” as a response to the conflicts and bloodshed in India through a built intervention using shared emotions to foster a sense of communal harmony. She believes there is an urgency to educate citizens for a better future. This design aims to merge into the daily social and cultural expressions of people encouraging people to treat religion as a part of the diverse culture of India.
